Location & Local Information

Well-known authors and filmmakers have contributed to increasing the popularity of the Luberon region over recent years but the landscape and villages retain their timeless appeal. The local lavender, cherries, olives, truffles and wines are world-famous for good reason. Nowadays you can also enjoy paintballing or microlight-flying in the area, as well as a gourmet chocolate factory tour or a visit to a lavender distillery down the road in Apt. Climbing, hiking, riding and cycling are also popular, and there are plenty of marked paths.

The Luberon is also one of the best places in France to observe the night-sky, and visitors are welcome at the St Michel Observatory of Haute Provence less than an hour's drive from this Luberon villa with pool Provence; quite a memorable experience.
