

Villa Encantado

Region: Begur Sleeps: 8

Overview

It's not often you come across a villa that justifies the claim 'room with a view', but Villa Encantado certainly does - and some!

From its elevated position on the northern coast of Catalunya, the villa delivers jaw-dropping sea and mountain views you'll be Instagramming in no time. Beautiful bays and forested landscapes, scattered with traditional villages, can be admired from the generous villa windows and pool terraces, which are delicately surrounded by attractive Mediterranean gardens.

Step inside this spacious whitewashed villa, and you'll be spoilt for choice with the four bedrooms - all tastefully decorated, and in keeping with the panoramic views. And, with four separate bathrooms, it's just as good for families as it is for friends sharing.

At the heart of the villa is the open-plan living and dining area with inviting sofas for those cosy nights in. But, if you prefer a spot of al fresco dining, you'll be spoilt for choice. With no less than five pretty patios with stunning vistas and even a stone barbecue to make the most of it, you'll be hard pushed to stay inside! And then there's the private pool to cool off in after all that glorious Spanish sun, of course.

Just 3km from the seductive beaches of Sa Riera, Sa Tuna, and Tamariu, amongst others, it's the perfect family destination. If the kids aren't splashing around in the pool, they'll be begging you to take them to the sandy beach which is considered by many to be part of the finest coastline in Spain. There's also plenty of lovely restaurants and bars in the area, so no hunting down somewhere to feed the kids (or yourselves) when they finally pull themselves away from that sea.

Fancy visiting a medieval village? You're in luck. The wonderful town of Begur, complete with narrow streets, neoclassical mansions, a castle and some seriously stylish restaurants is only 1.5km away. Simply stunning.

Location & Local Information

Whatever you're picturing, it's even better. Tamariu is a truly delightful seaside village, and its beach is considered one of the best on the Costa Brava.

The small crescent-shaped beach, surrounded by pine-clad headlands, is wonderfully sandy and blessed with translucent waters.

Originally a fishing village, Tamariu has retained much of its charm and identity, due to the nature (good fortune) of its rather rugged (but beautiful) coastline, and the challenging journey for those navigating the narrow hillside roads.

And thank goodness for that, as what we are left with is an utterly charming stretch of coastline occupied by like-minded discerning tourists who respect the local countryside and embrace the traditional restaurants and tapas bars found in this gem of a village.

There are welcome additions too; a popular promenade, a couple of well-stocked mini-markets and great waterfront restaurants. This is one special place to enjoy a family meal; just soak up the atmosphere as dusk falls.

Alternatively, head out to the little medieval town of Begur, just 1.5km away. Well worth the visit, this beautiful town with its narrow streets and crumbling buildings make for a great day trip or the perfect venue for a sublime supper.

An idyllic location, Tamariu is less than an hour's drive from Girona airport. What are you waiting for?

What Oliver loves...

- The uninterrupted panoramic views over mountains, and out to sea, that are almost 360
- It's quick and easy drive to some of the most beautiful beaches on the Costa Brava
- The nearby medieval town of Begur is simply beautiful, and bursting with stylish restaurants and bars

What you should know...

- There are many steps to navigate, which you may need to bear in mind for anyone who struggles with stairs
- The drive up to the villa is quite steep, but don't be put off, those views are worth it!
