

Villa Crescencia

Region: Moraira Sleeps: 9

Overview

Start your day under the Spanish sun sipping on fresh orange juice, that you made with local oranges from the market in the juicer at your villa. You could sit by the private pool, under the cabana looking out over the stunning views of the valley. Or you could be curled up on one of the comfy chairs on the balcony that wraps around the house, and has an equally as breath-taking view. Really, there is no better way to start your day in Spain, especially when you are staying in the upmarket coastal town of Moraira.

This villa is the epitome of classic Spanish style, the stucco-clad exterior with archways and a white balcony and the white interior with exposed beams and wooden finishings and furnishings. But as you enter the villa, it is the view that catches your eye and stops you in your tracks, it is hard not to imagine yourself looking over this villa with the family, dining on paella or another local cuisine.

Feasts can be prepared in the well-equipped kitchen, which boasts an electric hob, electric oven, microwave, dishwasher, refrigerator, freezer, coffee machine, toaster and juicer. These can then be enjoyed in the dining room or one of the three terraces, one of which is covered for all-year-round enjoyment. Not that this area often experiences rain, which is great for year-round travel. The large outdoor dining table seats ten, so everyone can join in.

After a long day, after all relaxing is exhausting, you can rest your head in one of the four bedrooms on offer. There is one bedroom with a double bed, two bedrooms with two single beds and one bedroom with three single beds, in the form of bunk beds. To compliment so many rooms, there are two bathrooms to share, one bathroom with a single washbasin, shower and bidet and another with a single washbasin, bath and bidet.

Outside, the Spanish charm and luxury continue. Whether this is on the terraces that look out over the mountain, or by the large private pool that has exquisite views. Should you wish to stay outdoors as long as possible, and who would blame you, meals can be prepared on the barbeque and enjoyed outside.

All of this is located in a residential and mountainous area, that is very close to restaurants and bars, shops and supermarkets and just two kilometres from km from El Portet beach.

Wandering Moraira is a must, especially for foodies, and whether you enjoy one of the three Michelin star restaurants or the weekly markets (Friday and Wednesday) there is plenty of local cuisines to feast on.

The beaches are equally as beautiful, and some of the most renowned coves in Moraira include Playa Del Portet, a sandy beach with crystal clear waters and Playa L'Andragó which boasts stunning views over to Calpe.

There are loads of activities for the whole family in the area, no matter the interest, from a bar that is within 1000 meters of the villa and a discotheque and nightclub within five kilometres to a church, ruins and historic place within five kilometres.

There are plenty of other coves and coastal towns along the Costa Blanca coastline that are worth a visit, towns such as Denia, Javea and Calpe are within 40 minutes of Moraira.
