Days can begin on one of the four terraces, one of which is covered, sipping on freshly made coffee. Evenings can then be spent alfresco dining at the cosy outdoor dining nook, with a feast prepared on the barbeque. In other words, days from start to finish can live out your idea of tranquillity.

The interior of the villa offers bright, open-plan living with large windows and double doors that open to the outdoor area. Outdoors is the real charmer of the house, and the real haven. Spend the day relaxing by the private pool on one of the sun loungers or seek refuge from the crowd, and the sun, on one of the covered balconies that overlook the stunning ocean vistas.

Location & Local Information

With stunning clear waters and white sandy beaches, the Costa Blanca coast is a popular holiday destination for tourists from all over the world. With over 200 kilometres of Mediterranean coastline, there are many towns and villages along the coast that boast spectacular beaches and medieval history.

One of the reasons for why it is such a popular destination lies in the weather. The area is rarely without sun all year round, as the area averages 3,000 hours of sunshine each year.

The oldest town along the coast, Benissa, is where this villa is located. Visitors marvel in the medieval history as they wander the narrow lanes and are enchanted by the white-walled buildings, the homes with window grids and the balconies that have flowers hanging from them. Everything in this town is beautifully quaint and full of history.

As for the local cuisine, seafood is plentiful and a must-try. There are also plenty of international establishments in the area, so every appetite is happy.

Benissa is conveniently located near to other towns along the Costa Blanca and easily accessible due to the proximity of the A-7 motorway. Day trips can be had to the historical town of Calpe or the upmarket beach town of Moraira. The town is also near the two local airports, Valencia and Alicante and the villa sits just over 100 kilometres from both.
