Location & Local Information

A delightful small fishing town, surrounded by magnificent old vineyards and olive groves, Prigradica is situated on the northwest coast of the beautiful Croatian Island of Korcula.

Just 4km from Blato, 12 from Vela Luka and the world-famous city of Marco Polo, and 45 from the town of Korcula, Prigradica is the perfect location for those that enjoy a peaceful holiday set against Mother Nature's backdrop.

The Island of Korcula itself is a heady mix of dense woodland and quiet coves, with small sandy beaches dotting the southern coast and pebbly sheltered bays on the north.

Rich in its traditional heritage; religious ceremonies, folk music and dances are a popular attraction for tourists. And don't miss some fantastic wine tasting, as some of Croatia's most loved wine comes from locally grown grapes.

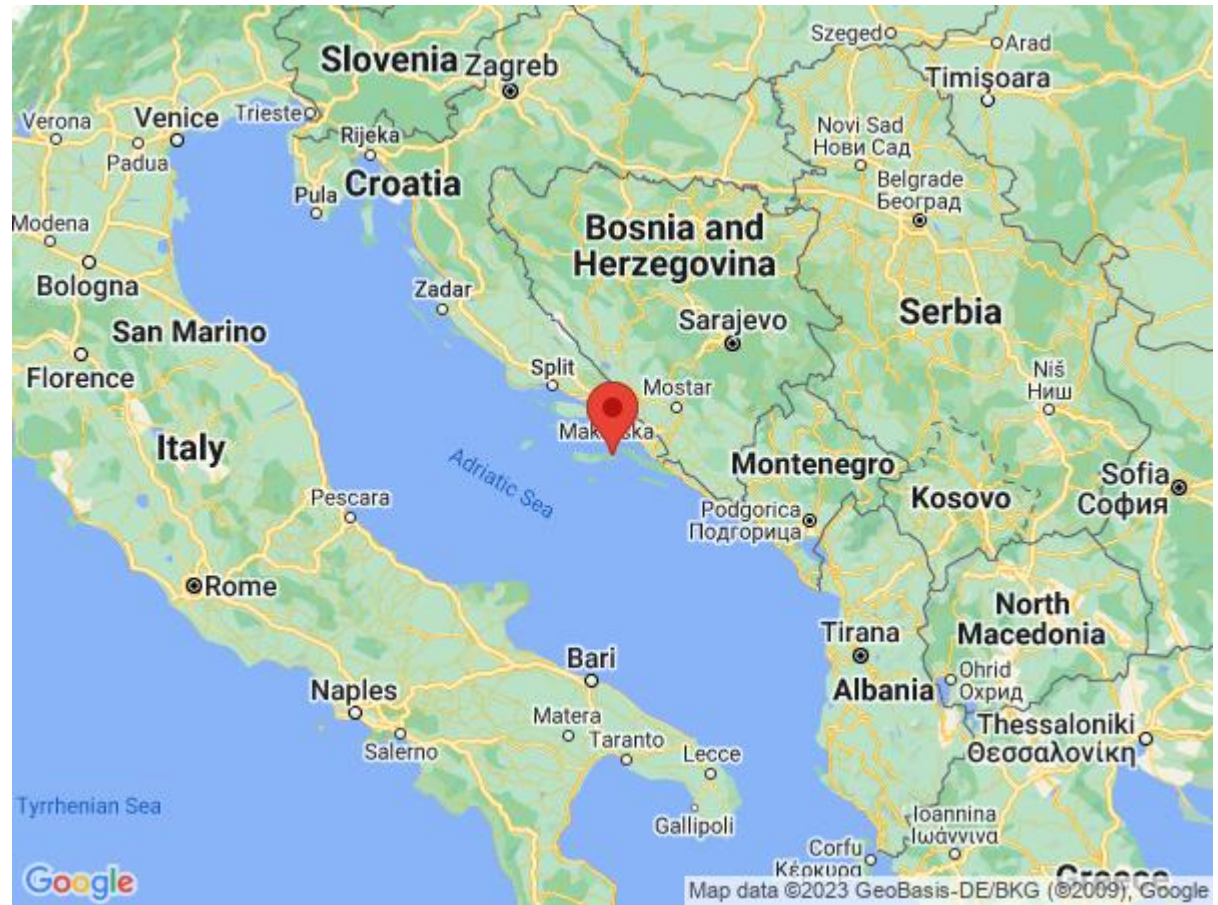

Prigradica comes alive during the Summer months with the remainder of the year being relatively quiet. You'll find a mixture of newly built homes along with the traditional ancient stone houses, and a central community located around the beautiful bay.

A family-friendly atmosphere welcomes you to this quaint little town, with a small selection of restaurants, bars and cafes. The lovely shingle beach is ideal for families with its sheltered location and crystal clear shallow waters.

For the more adventurous amongst you, you can find soccer fields, basketball and sand volleyball in the area, as well as cycling and trekking routes taking advantage of its beautiful forested and mountainous location.

Nearby you might like to explore the surrounding ancient villages, untouched for centuries or the little Islands of Proizd, Ošjak, and Badija just a short boat ride away.

Or for day trips further afield the nearby towns of Vela Luka and Korcula are well worth a visit. There are also boat services from Blato to the bustling neighbouring Island of Hvar and Split on the mainland.
