Location & Local Information

Ubud is the cultural heart of Bali, so it's the place to be if you want to do more than just relax. You can catch a performance of traditional Balinese dance, or be introduced to local art and architecture at its Neka, Agung Rai and Blanco Renaissance Museums. The town has a good dining scene, and you often enjoy your meal in beautiful outdoor surroundings. Vegans and vegetarians are well catered for in Ubud, and many visitors look to keep body and mind in harmony with a visit to a yoga retreat.

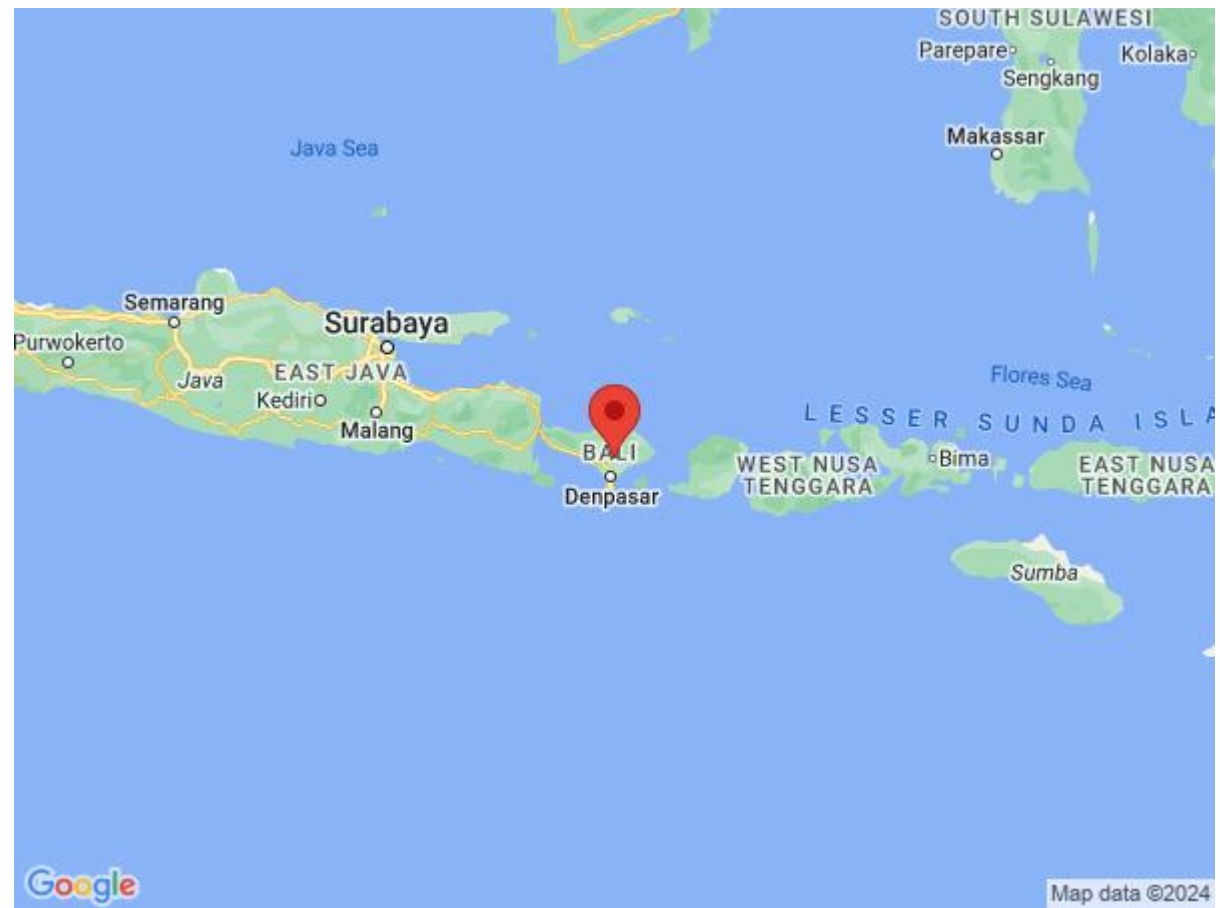

The area is perfect for getting active, whether it's by river rafting or hiking the Campuhan Ridge. Activities like quad-biking are possible at the Bali Swing adventure park, the swings being of a particularly spectacular type your photos will show off the beautiful views to the max. Bicycle tours of the area, and walks through the rice fields are also popular.

Other attractions range from the serene and subdued (temples), to the possibly dangerous (Sacred Monkey Forest). Contact with the apes is best avoided but they may try to get close anyway avoid having anything on you they may steal.

Ubud's central location puts both coasts within driving distance if you go west, be sure to stop by Seminyak, the classiest of the south-western resorts. To the east, family-friendly and chilled Nusa Dua may be of interest too. Its beach is one of several on the south-eastern coast that are well worth checking out expect white sands and calm waters that are ideal for swimming.
