

Borgo Barolo

Region: Piedmont Sleeps: 31

Overview

Imagine drinking some of Italy's most prestigious wines whilst gazing out towards UNESCO World heritage landscapes. Borgo Barolo, in the heart of the Piedmont wine region, offers high-end accommodation and exceptional services in a picture-postcard setting surrounded by award-winning vineyards and hazelnut groves.

Ideal for a family reunion or special holiday with wine and food-loving friends, this stunning abode has sixteen bedrooms across four beautiful villas, each one perfectly positioned around the swimming pool with incredible views. Elegantly designed interiors are met with state-of-the-art facilities from the professionally equipped kitchen and temperature-controlled wine cabinet to fast Wi-Fi and a Sonos music system. Each villa features its own al-fresco dining area with an outdoor kitchen, grill and herb garden for idyllic evening meals as you drink world-class Barolo or Barberesco from local wineries.

A cook can be organised to create candle-lit feasts using some of the gastronomic delights of the region, paired with the very best wines, or dine in a more relaxed setting with a poolside party as the chef lights up the barbecue. Farmer market visits with a specialised guide, private truffle hunting and cookery classes can also be arranged as can a wealth of other unique experiences tailored to your individual requests and style, including personalised wine itineraries to make the most of this remarkable region.

Whether its picnics in the vineyards or dining in Michelin starred restaurants close by, you will soon discover why this region is so famed for its cuisine as well as wine. Head to Alba, only 9km away, to try the famous white truffles or come across rustic restaurants in enchanting medieval villages serving culinary treats such as rich tajarin pasta or Piemontese beef carpaccio. Eat well in a variety of local osterie and trattorie, including in the local village just 2km away, and pick up all sorts of regional produce at Farmer's markets dotted across local villages and towns.

Whether experiencing the wine harvest and truffle fairs of the autumn, snuggling up by the cosy fire in the winter, sampling the new wines amongst the vibrant colours of spring or lazing by the swimming pool in the summer, Borgo Barolo is a special place where you will be incredibly well looked after at all times of year.

Location & Local Information

In the heart of one of Italy's most famous wine regions, Borgo Barolo is perfectly positioned for you to be able to taste some of the fine wines of Piedmont, an area which has recently acquired UNESCO World Heritage status.

Borgo Barolo enjoys a rural setting amongst vineyards and hazelnut groves, just 9km from the beautiful town of Alba. Wander through the estate's vineyards surrounding the villas, owned by a prestigious winery, and admire the incredible landscapes around you. The owner's winery, located around a 45-minute drive away, is one of the few in Piedmont that has exclusive access to older vintages.

The local hilltop village, around 2km away (about 20-30 minutes walk), has a handful of places to eat or drink whilst another nearby village, a little further by car, has amenities such as a grocery store and pharmacy. Head to La Morra (6km) on a Monday morning to experience its authentic market selling local fruit and vegetables as well as cheese, meat and fish. Look out for other local Farmer's markets in Gallo (6km), Alba (9km) and Bra (11km).

Of course, one of the main reasons that visitors are drawn to this part of northern Italy is for the wine-tasting – after all, this area produces the highest number of DOCG wines (the highest quality in Italian law) in all of the country. The owners can help organise vineyard visits whether you are looking to explore the Langhe, home to the world-famous Barbaresco and Barolo labels, or some of the lesser-known wine-makers around Roero or Monferrato. Most wineries request an appointment so ensure you book in advance if you have any specific producers you would like to visit. Customised tours can also be arranged to include truffle hunting, cooking classes and lunches amongst other activities.

The cuisine of this region is also to be celebrated from marinated veal and Piemontese beef carpaccio to rich tajarin pasta, delicious agnolotti and the famous white truffles from Alba. Hazelnuts are also a local speciality and there are some amazing regional cheeses to pick up from nearby Farmer's markets. Alba (9km) is known to be the gastronomy capital of this region and there are increasing numbers of Michelin starred restaurants appearing in the town itself and surrounding villages.

It's a relaxed way of life in Piedmont – even the slow-cooking movement originated here. Expect shops to close in the early afternoon, a great time to cycle through the surrounding countryside, finding a perfect spot for a picnic and discover beautiful hikes. Visit idyllic local villages, admire historic castles and fascinating local museums, followed of course by amazing meals accompanied by some of the best wines in the world.

Experience a change of pace in Turin (69km), a splendid city which was once the capital of Italy and has been transformed since hosting the 2006 Winter Olympics. It's now known for its vibrant cultural scene as well as historic palaces, museums and its superb riverside setting. Winter-sport enthusiasts also love its close proximity to the Alps.
