Location & Local Information

Finca Cifre is just 2km away from the bustling town centre of Pollensa. In turn, this villa allows guests to reach a wide variety of amenities and attractions with ease. The Pollensa Market is located in the main plaza within the town centre, making it a landmark attraction for both locals and tourists. This market brings together a diverse assortment of merchants, all selling a range of artisan goods. With over 300 stalls to discover, including clothes, bags, and craft items, you are bound to find a hidden gem to remind you of your wonderful time in Pollensa. Not to mention, there is also an abundance of local produce to try, helping you to recreate lots of cultural dishes using a selection of fresh ingredients.

The Pollensa Museum is also located in the main plaza, sourcing some of the town's finest art pieces from the 16th century. This museum began construction in 1588 and finished in 1616, showing off a plethora of ornate Gothic altarpieces. During the 1960s, these art pieces were praised at the Summer Exhibition of Painting, helping to draw more traction to this landmark. Despite its long-running history, the museum was only officially founded in 1975. The Pollensa Museum is a fantastic place to visit if you are looking to dig deeper into the region's expressive art scene. Plus, this museum is free to enter for all guests and is open between 10 am and 2 pm on weekdays.

Pollensa also contains a variety of impeccable landscapes, giving guests a picturesque view wherever they decide to visit. The Joan March Gardens are located just 45-minutes away from the town centre of Pollensa, offering a rural paradise just a short while away. These pristine gardens were named after the first-born son of the March family, a wealthy tribe that spurred Pollensa into an economic boom with its intuitive business ventures. As such, these gardens are teeming with looming trees and a variety of plants, helping to create a centralised hub of natural sources. These gardens are open 24-hours a day, ensuring that guests have plenty of time to visit them during their stay.
