Location & Local Information

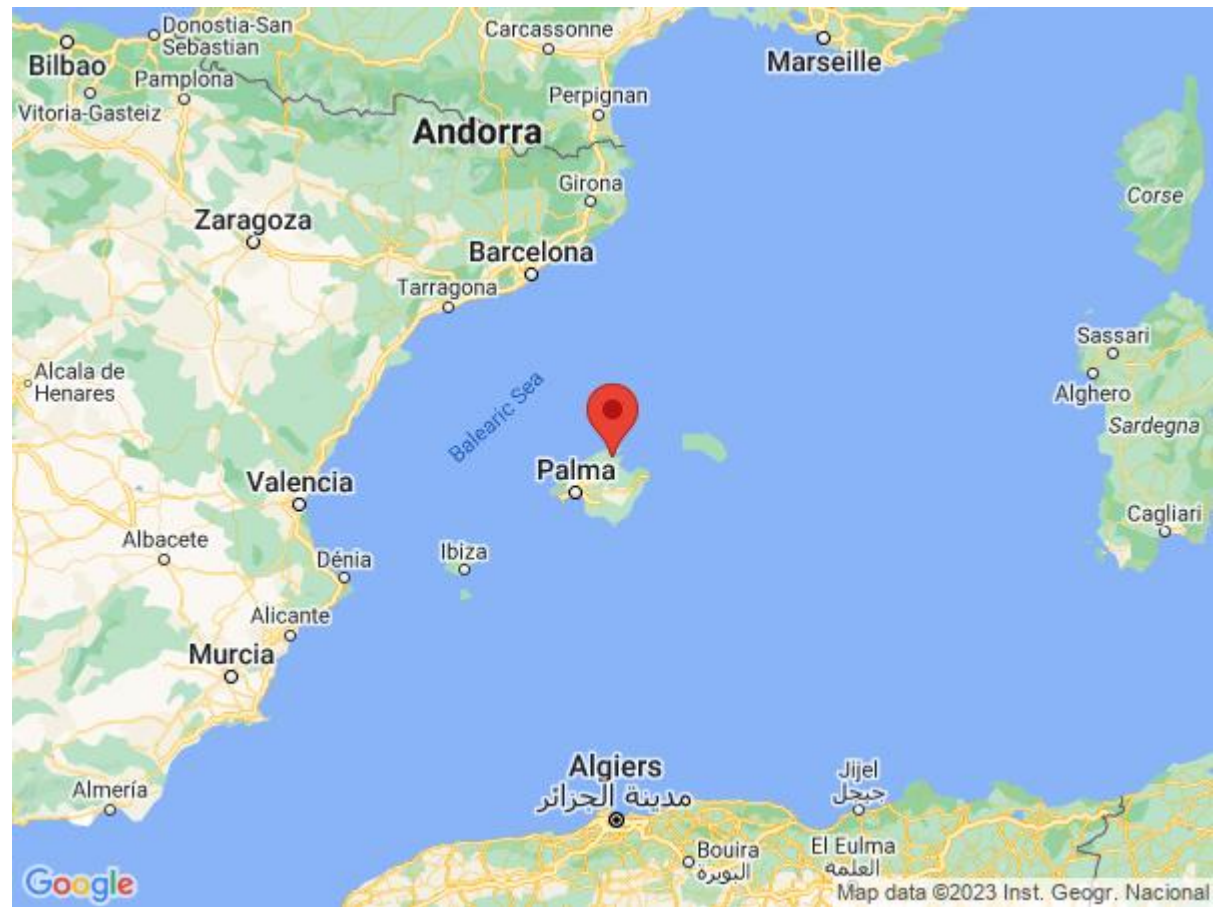

Casa Mastaguera is based in Pollensa, an idyllic region that has captured the hearts and minds of tourists for many years. Pollensa Market can be found just a stone's throw away from the town centre and is a great place to visit if you are looking to blend in with the locals of this community. This market is truly expansive and hosts more than 300 stalls each week, pulling in unique vendors from across the region. During their time at this market, guests have the chance to purchase a range of diverse items, such as artisan clothes, bags, and jewellery. There is even a separate section devoted to fresh produce. Therefore, guests are encouraged to purchase a range of fruit and vegetables that can be used in their own cooking back at Casa Mastaguera. The Pollensa Market occurs every Wednesday from 8 am to 1:30 pm.

Alzinet Caves are a remarkable prehistoric landmark that is located around 10-minutes away from Pollensa town centre. These archaic structures seem to date back to 1600 BC, hosting a wide variety of fascinating artefacts that were originally sourced from the Middle Bronze Age. Guests can experience these artefacts in a more intimate way as they travel through the collection of structures. Although these caves have a very long history, they were only discovered in 1927. British archaeologist Wilfred Hemp noted these caves in his inventory and now has a cave named Number 7 of Hemp in his honour.

If you are looking to become more mindful of your beautiful surroundings, a visit to Joan March Gardens can help you reconnect with nature. These idyllic grounds were first formed in the late 1980s as a way to commemorate the eldest son of the March family. This group of individuals is best known for their prosperous business tactics that helped this small town to see incredible riches. The gardens are filled with a diverse array of horticulture, such as looming olive trees and rare botanical plants. There is even a large number of slim cypress trees which are commonly seen on the town's traditional coat of arms. Joan March Gardens are just under 10-minutes away from the centre of the region and are open 24 hours a day.
