The interior of this property embodies a deeply chic and minimalist theme, helping guests to feel comfortable and secure as soon as they step through the front door. This property is also home to a simplistic seating area, equipped with small scatter cushions and an assortment of grey fabric. Moreover, this sofa can instantly transform into an additional bed that can accommodate either a small child or an adult. Next to this sofa bed is a luxurious double bed that has been expertly lined with a plethora of organic linens. Thus, guests are guaranteed to maintain a restful night's sleep throughout their stay on this wonderful property. The most opulent aspect of this property is the private indoor pool that sits on the basement level of this property. The Es Raco d'Arta resort was originally seen as a collection of small houses that had been standing since the 13th century. However, when Mallorca was experiencing a boom in its tourism industry in the 1960s, designers Antoni Esteve and Jaume Danus decided to completely renovate the grounds and transform them into an exclusive wellness resort. This resort operates with sustainability and conservation at the forefront of its mission statement, supplying guests with eco-friendly air conditioning units as well as an array of sustainable toiletries. Therefore, guests can truly enjoy their holiday without worrying about negatively impacting the environment.
