

Villa Maja

Region: Krk Sleeps: 8

Overview

Just 50m from the sea, Villa Sibila offers delightful views from the coast of Krk island. Easily accessible from Rijeka Airport, around 20 minutes drive away in the north of the island, this 4-bedroom villa comes with a lovely outdoor pool and spacious terrace.

Suitable for up to eight people, Villa Sibila is situated in the small village of Klimno. Your outside space is peaceful and private, centred on the enticing heated pool. You have a lounge area with a sofa and an array of sun loungers in this area, and a large gas barbecue is available to you too. The gorgeous view of Soline Bay and direct access to the open-plan interior makes it a fine place to relax.

The house offers a well-equipped kitchen, dining area and living room; all just steps away from the terrace. You can enjoy a 65-inch flatscreen TV with satellite channels, ample seating and every appliance from a coffee machine to a dishwasher. Wooden floors and appealing décor and lighting create a relaxed vibe here.

The four bedrooms include one on this floor, with a king-size bed, private bathroom, TV and terrace access. Upstairs, two of the remaining three also have access to the upper terrace, and all come with similar features. There is also air conditioning, underfloor heating and internet access throughout Villa Sibila.

Known as the 'Golden Isle', Krk is a sought-after destination in northern Croatia, connected via a bridge to the mainland. Krk Town is around 20km from Klimno and offers historic sights such as the Frankopan Castle and Krk Cathedral, while beautiful beaches and vineyards define the local landscape. Be sure to head over to the culturally rich city of Rijeka, where Trsat Castle, the Natural History Museum and the buzzing Korso promenade await you.

Location & Local Information

As Croatia's largest island, Krk is a popular destination which incorporates the airport of the country's third-largest city, Rijeka. Known as the 'Golden Isle', it's scenic enough in its own right, and serves as a good base for exploring the north of the country too – a bridge connects Krk to the mainland.

The town that shares the island's name is well worth a look, lined with beautiful beaches and good cultural attractions. The city walls date back more than 2000 years, while the Frankopan Castle which sits overlooking the sea has its roots in the 12th century. Krk Cathedral, or the Cathedral of the Assumption, is of a similar vintage and is one of the stand-out sights of the Old Town. Meanwhile, the pretty harbourside promenade is filled with café terraces and bars.

The Zlahtina wine made around Vrbnik – a very pretty medieval village on the island's eastern coast – is one of Krk's foodie highlights. It's not difficult to eat well here, or in idyllic surroundings. Restaurants will often set up where the best sea views are, serving excellent Mediterranean and Croatian cuisine in the fresh air. Tavern-like konobas can also be found in towns all over Krk.

Sun-drenched Baška's 2km-long pebble beach with crystal-clear waters is just one of the island's very popular beaches, with visitors enjoying water sports or simply grabbing a sun lounger. Often a little quieter, you could also try the similarly named Stara Baška if you head through the hills to Krk's milder southwestern side.

Whether you prefer scuba-diving, hiking in the mountains or cycling, there is always something active you can do on Krk. Zip-lining, rock climbing and quad biking are all possible, while various boat hire centres will get you out on the water.

Its airport may be on the island, but the busy port of Rijeka is situated across the water. The city is certainly a mix of old and new, but there are plenty of notable sights worth your time, including Trsat Castle, which sits high above the town. There's a lively energy to the place, which is especially evident at carnival time (Jan – Mar) and during the summer festival.

About 20 minutes drive west is the upscale spa resort of Opatija, one of the highlights of the Kvarner Riviera – the glorious Lungomare promenade is the place to see and, indeed, be seen.

What we love

- This modern villa offers relaxing terraces on both floors, each with a fine view over the bay and plenty of seating for everyone.
- The fresh, light interiors create a relaxing ambience and are superbly styled – and that extends to the comfortable bedrooms and en suite bathrooms too.
- You'll be in a great location for all the delights of Krk, as well as mainland gems like Rijeka and glamorous Opatija.
