Fishing and agriculture remain the primary industries. The island is famous for its fish sauce, pepper and pearls.

Phu Quoc enjoys a 150 km coastline with crystal clear turquoise waters and gentle waves. Long Beach boasts 20 km of endless sand and gorgeous sunsets. Further north, the secluded resorts and rough roads keep some beautiful tree-lined beaches such as Ganh Dau and Bai Thom hidden from the crowds. Sao Beach, with fine powdery white sand and aqua water, is always a favourite with locals and visitors. Laid-back Ong Lang Beach is another beauty with gorgeous sunsets.

As the island is so famous for its fish sauce, you can tour a fish sauce factory to see how this fermented treasure is made. You will gain a glimpse into everyday life and can finish the day visiting a traditional fishing village such as Ham Hinh to eat delicious fresh seafood at a floating restaurant. You should try it with locally cultivated black pepper, another delicacy of Phu Quoc. For cultural experiences, you can visit many temples including Cao Dai, where believers follow a unique religion that takes elements of Christianity, Buddhism, Islam, Confucianism, Hinduism, Genie and Taoism. While on the island, you should ride the spectacular cable car to Hon Thom island. You will be certain to enjoy delicious food with some of the freshest and tastiest seafood including raw herring salads and flower crab.

Adventurous visitors can trek the mountain range that spans the length of the island, enjoying evergreen forests sprinkled with waterfalls, rock pools and caves. You may want to hire a motorbike to explore some of the mountain range.
