Bandol is a charming seaside resort with an authentic ambience. Stroll along the marina lined with restaurants and towering palm trees and admire the many boats before wandering to the little market on Place de la Liberté selling regional delights including seafood. A larger market takes over the quayside on Tuesday mornings and there is a great choice of restaurants, cafes and bars dotted throughout the town.

The 'Sentier du Littoral' coastal trail passes through Bandol and continues on to Saint-Cyr-sur-Mer, a paradise for keen walkers. You will find summer watersports on many of the beaches in and around Bandol as well as boat trips to the unique, artistic and private island, Île de Bendor. Beach lovers note that Plage de Renécros is one of the town's most scenic bays.

Drive to Sanary-sur-Mer (8km) for its characterful harbour and weekly market, look out for catch of the day in the fishing town of La Seyne-sur-Mer (15km) and spend time at the gorgeous beach at Les Sablettes (19km), home to atmospheric evening markets in the height of the summer. Saint-Mandrier-sur-Mer (23km) is another superb spot for walks, as is La Forêt de Janas, known as the 'green lung' of Toulon and also loved by mountain bikers and horse-riding enthusiasts.

Wind and kite surfers often head to one of the beaches around Six-Fours-les-Plages such as Plage de Bonnegrâce and Plage de la Coudoulière. All along this coastline and beyond you will find a wide range of watersports.

The maritime city of Toulon (18km) is another great day out with its old quarter, wonderful markets, restaurants, harbour and boat tours. The sandy beach in the city neighbourhood of Mourillon is popular with families or elsewhere there are cable car rides from Toulon up to the top of Mont Faron.

Heading west towards Marseille, Cassis (25km) is a picture-perfect fishing village, a fine spot for lunch out or a little wine tasting. It's the gateway to the Parc national des Calanques – find out from the tourist office about which hiking trails are best suited to you or discover the incredible landscapes by boat.
