Location & Local Information

Casa Bardetes is situated just under 15 minutes away from the centre of Formentera, offering guests the chance to observe a selection of iconic landmarks from a much more intimate perspective. One of the region's most significant monuments is Cap de Barbaria, which is based just over 10 minutes away from the villa. This lighthouse stretches over 100 metres above sea level, allowing guests to experience a wealth of awe-inspiring views of the natural surroundings that sit below. In addition to its remarkable location, this landmark is also a keen figure on the silver screen. Fans of European film will recognise this structure from the cult classic Lucio y el Sexio, as depicted in Julio Medem's photograph. As such, guests now have the chance to uncover the nuances of this region in a completely new way.

La Savina is one of the first villages that visitors will come across as they enter Formentera, making it a popular hotspot with both locals and tourists. This area is home to a vast harbour that collates a series of grandiose sailing boats, making it a great attraction for those looking to learn more about the region's definitive legacy. In turn, guests can browse through a selection of artisan shops and dive into a collection of outstanding meals, all while they observe the small fishing boats glide across the crystal-clear water. La Savina can be found just 15 minutes away from Casa Bardetes.

Together with its bustling culture and unique attractions, this region is also commended for its diverse food scene. A popular native dish is Peix Sec de Formentera, an unconventional menu option that takes an abundance of local skates and leaves them out to dry on one of the many Sabina trees seen throughout this area. As a result, this is a fantastic dish to try if you are looking to push away from your usual culinary choices and delve into something new entirely. This dish can be found in a collection of restaurants based in the town centre, giving guests the prime opportunity to indulge in an elegant meal and soak up the energetic local atmosphere.
