Location & Local Information

Chalet Proveres is located in beautiful Le Praz, a charming and historic village that is part of the larger Courchevel ski resort in the French Alps. As the lowest of the four main Courchevel villages, Le Praz is considered the gateway to Courchevel.

Getting to Chalet Proveres is easy as can be, with several transport options available. The most popular way is by car or shuttle bus from the airports in Geneva or Lyon - either a private rental, a taxi, or a shared shuttle. To get between villages, there is a gondola lift that connects Le Praz with Courchevel 1850, which is the largest and most well-known village in the resort.

Le Praz is well-known for its traditional architecture and laid-back atmosphere in addition to its excellent access to its skiing and winter sports facilities. The village is situated at the base of the wider ski area and has its own lift that provides easy access to the slopes.

In addition to skiing, Le Praz offers a range of other activities for visitors to enjoy. The village has several shops, restaurants, and bars, as well as a lively après-ski scene. Other popular activities include cross-country skiing thanks to the area's large number of walking tracks that wind through the surrounding forests and meadows.

One of the main attractions of Le Praz is its Olympic ski jump, which was built for the 1992 Winter Olympics. You can take a tour of the facility and even try your hand at ski jumping on a smaller training jump if you're brave enough.
