Location & Local Information

Villa Tamarell can be found just under 15 minutes away from the centre of Pollensa, a region that is consistently commended for its impressive history and alluring landmarks. One of the area's most unusual attractions is Placa de l'Almonia, a small square that is home to a house that was once run by wealthy university students. These individuals often used their own funds to support the region's poorest citizens, making it a key asset to its immense native history. Back on the 30th of May 1550, this square also hosted a ferocious battle between violent ambushers and the town's peasant community. To celebrate the bravery shown by those who fought on this day, modern citizens hold a moving ceremony every August. Placa de l'almonia is situated just over 10 minutes away from the villa.

If you wish to uncover more about Pollensa's rich religious roots, you must visit the remarkable Puig de Maria. Based at the top of a 330-metre summit, this gracious monastery was first built in 1348 as a devoted and passionate shrine to the Virgin Mary. Throughout the years, it has been completely transformed but now showcases a traditional 18th-century style, complete with a diverse array of Gothic and Baroque motifs. Many previous guests have also said that it only takes around half an hour to climb to the top of the peak, making it an accessible hike for those who are looking to embark on a sightseeing tour with a twist. The Puig de Maria is based just 10 minutes away from Villa Tamarell.

For those looking to rekindle their sense of adventure whilst, on holiday, a trip to Alzinaret Caves is a must-do activity. Though these structures were originally discovered in 1927, it is believed that they date all the way back to 1600 BC. As such, guests now have the privilege of observing and examining a wealth of alluring artefacts that were originally sourced from the Middle Bronze Age. With around 14 caves in total to explore, this is an ideal attraction for those who are eager to try something new and observe the delightful region from an entirely new perspective. Alzinaret Caves are located just over 15 minutes away from the villa.
