Location & Local Information

Villa Pouli is nestled within the charming village of Agios Ioannis in Heraklion, Crete. This idyllic destination, situated along the southern coast of the island, provides visitors with an enchanting experience in one of Greece's most picturesque locales.

Agios Ioannis, a small coastal village, is renowned for its unspoiled natural beauty and captivating ambience. It strikes a harmonious balance between tranquillity and accessibility, being located just a short distance from the bustling city of Heraklion. Villa Pouli offers guests the opportunity to embrace the local culture and attractions while enjoying a peaceful escape from the crowds.

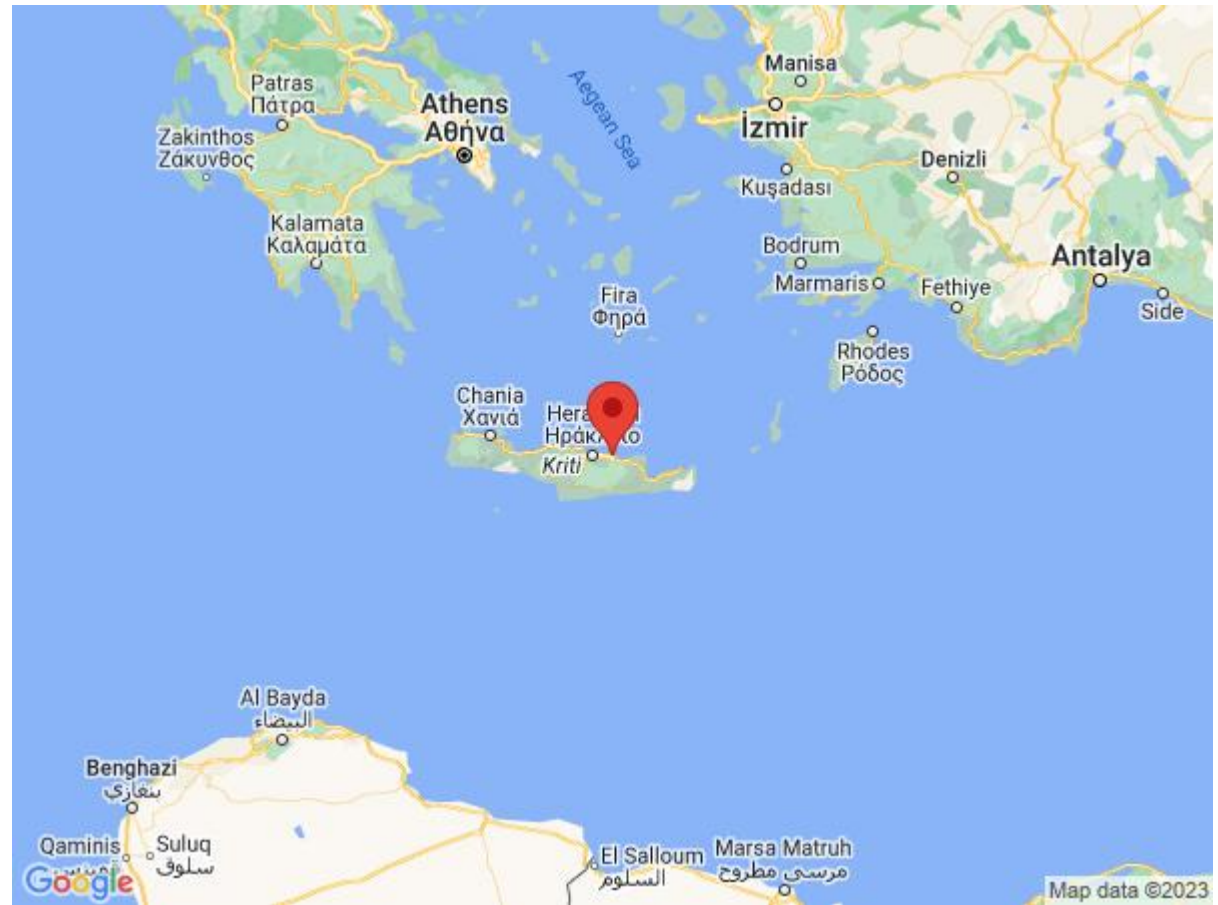

Perched atop a gentle hill, the villa boasts breathtaking vistas of the cerulean Aegean Sea and the verdant surrounding landscape. The Mediterranean-style architecture seamlessly blends traditional charm with modern comforts, providing guests with a comfortable and relaxing stay. Outdoors, the villa features a large private pool and well-tended gardens, inviting visitors to soak in the Mediterranean sun and unwind in serene surroundings. Agios Ioannis village is celebrated for its warm hospitality, and guests can indulge in the flavours of Crete at local tavernas, where fresh seafood and locally produced olive oil are delectable highlights.

The villa's strategic location enables easy exploration of the region's treasures. Nearby, the ancient ruins of Knossos offer a glimpse into the Minoan civilization's historical significance. Nature enthusiasts can venture to the enchanting beaches of Agia Pelagia and Lygaria, where crystal-clear waters invite relaxation and play.

For those seeking adventure, the surrounding mountains offer excellent hiking opportunities with trails leading to mesmerizing viewpoints and hidden caves. Notably, the Samaria Gorge, Europe's longest gorge, beckons avid hikers and nature lovers alike.

Evenings at Villa Pouli provide the perfect setting for spectacular sunsets over the horizon, accompanied by local wine and traditional Cretan barbecues. The serene location also presents ideal conditions for stargazing, creating magical moments to end the day.

Whether visitors seek relaxation, exploration, or a blend of both, this location promises an unforgettable experience, leaving them with cherished memories of Crete's remarkable allure.

What we love

- We love the views at Villa Pouli, especially from the furnished balcony, best enjoyed at sunset, cocktail in hand
- The swimming pool at Villa Pouli is sensational, long enough for a few lengths, and lovely enough for a cooling dip
- The soft seating area at Villa Pouli is superb, sensuously draped in billowing sheer blue and white nets
- We loved dining under the pergola, especially with dishes freshly grilled on the built-in barbeque, we savoured the sensational flavours!

What you should know...

- Villa Pouli can accommodate up to five guests, including one on the sofa/bed in the seating area
- The second twin room has bunk beds and is ideal for children
- The villa only has one shared bathroom and a separate WC
